DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 01/17/07 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 90-98, 102-112 and 116-119 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Schroeder (3,550,261).

Schroeder (Figures 1-3) shows an electronic component comprising a substrate (a semiconductor device) 10 including a plurality of conductive areas 12 and a plurality of resilient conductive contact structures (metal layers) 20, each having a base portion (not numbered) coupled to the conductive areas and a tip portion (not numbered) displaced from the substrate and the base portion and a beam portion (not numbered) between the base portion and the tip portion wherein a width of a length of the beam portion decreases along its length from the base portion to the tip portion. Each of the base portion, the beam portion and the tip portion comprise a plurality of layers 16, 18 of different metallic materials. The substrate has a conductive layer 13 coupling the conductive areas to internal circuitry and a passive layer on the surface of the substrate with openings at the conductive areas which forms a plurality of terminals electrically connected to the conductive areas. The tip portion comprises a pointed end. The contact structures are spaced 0.0125 cm apart which is between 2.5 micron (0.0000025 meters) and 2000 micron (0.002 meters). The beam portion has a linear slope from the base to the tip. The tip portion is rectangular in shape. Each contact structure has only one tip and only one beam portion. Schroeder further shows another substrate including a conductive contact element in physical contact with the one and only tip portion (see Figure 2).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 99-101 and 113-115 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Schroeder (3,550,261).

Schroeder shows all the features of these claims except the tip being beveled, triangular or quadrilateral in shape. An official notice is given that such shapes are well known in the art of electrical connectors. The applicant has not provided any specific reasons or problems to be solved by having these shapes. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the instant invention to select such shapes from one of numerous configurations because such a selection is generally recognized as being within the level of ordinary skill in the art.

Response to Arguments

6. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. See PTO-892 attached.
